

DuPont Laboratories

One of the premier names in science and chemical development in the world, DuPont Laboratories got there and stays there through leadership and embracing change.

Their Need

DuPont is challenged at every turn by established companies in the United States, domestic newcomers, hundreds of overseas companies and not a few pirates. Their survival depends upon being first to market in the strongest possible way with new, cutting edge products. Their survival depends upon being about to quickly shift human and physical resources to core a research and product breakthrough.

The Whitley Solution

From the day we are contacted by DuPont to the day the beaker was filled was under seven months. The laboratory met all government standards and contained specific test stations and the necessary equipment to allow DuPont to bring a research idea through a battery of tests and trials and then on to market.

Meeting government testing standards involved specialized wall and floor coverings, vents, hoods, drainage and storage capacities. It all had to be built to exacting standards...and it was...in the shortest possible time.

